The Wilberforce Connection by Clifford Hill - MRP £9.99, Sale £4.99

William Wilberforce and his friends transformed society in the 18th century.

How can we transform society today? 384pp; 2004

Written for the hopeful, this powerful book illustrates how dedication and careful research can change a godless society into a living example. When William Wilberforce and the Clapham Group came along in mid-18th-century England, a godless and repressive world prevailed: Members of Parliament purchased their seats, the annual consumption of gin was three gallons per person, and the government did nothing to stop child labour. Enter William Wilberforce. Through research, personal example, and generous giving, Wilberforce and his friends made "goodness fashionable" once again. Like Wilberforce, author Clifford Hill examines today's culture and insists that there is still time for Christians to make changes for the better - and transform our society.

Cost £4.99 (£6.99 to include postage and packing)
